Zambia offers an attractive investment destination, with a stable economy and political landscape that has been characterized by decades-long peace and tranquility. This investor-centric ambience offers unmatched opportunities to exploit massive opportunities found in very big untapped markets within the real estate sector which is fast growing, driven by enormous voracity for infrastructure for commercial activities and dwelling houses for a rapidly expanding population. Zambia's population by 2020 is expected to be 17, million heads.

Already at roughly 14,000,000 people, the country has a massive void of infrastructure for commercial activities and residential houses. It makes true economic sense to invest in the real estate sector to take advantage of this massive growing demand from rapidly expanding middle class populations. Thousands of working people need accommodation, and the country's feudal legacy of inadequate infrastructure calls for massive infrastructure development for economic cavities.

Zambia is a young, unsaturated economy that offers every investor an opportunity to reap market rents dramatically.
